

How to play

Disc golf is played like ball golf using a flying disc.

Tee off: Tee throws must be released from within the designated tee area.

Throwing order: After teeing off, the player whose disc is farthest from the hole always throws first. The player with the lowest score from the previous hole is the first to tee off on the next hole.

Lie: The spot where the disc lands.

Fairway throws: Must be made from the lie.

Score: One point is counted each time the disc is thrown.

Putt: Within 10 yards of the target, a player may not step past the lie when attempting a throw.

Completion of hole: The hole is complete when the disc is in the basket or supported by the chains.

Out of bounds: A throw that lands out of bounds must be played from the point where the disc went out. Add one point to your score.

Winning: The winner is the person with the lowest score after completing the course.

Courtesy: Wait to throw until other players or park users are out of range. Help protect natural areas by picking up litter.

The only equipment you need to play disc golf is a flying disc. While any disc can be used to play, some are designed specifically for the sport.

DISC GOLF in SD state parks

Disc golf is a growing sport enjoyed by all ages and abilities. It is played much like regular golf, with the goal of getting the disc into the “hole” (the basket) in the fewest number of throws. The rules are simple, tee times and green fees are non-existent and people of limited physical abilities can play. The game can be as competitive or non- competitive as you wish.

No Disc? No Problem!

All parks with a disc golf course have discs that you can borrow free of charge from the park entrance booth.

Where to Play

Disc golf courses are located in twelve South Dakota state parks. There is no cost to play on any of the state park courses as long as you have a valid park entrance license. Contact the individual park for more information on its disc golf course.

Try out the disc golf courses at the following state parks:
